MORE UNCOVERED ON SPIKES' JULY 19 SALUTE TO CONSPIRACY THEORIES NIGHT

Amelia Earhart Mystery Solved? Conspiracy Theory Themed Jerseys REVEALED

STATE COLLEGE, PA - The State College Spikes are less than a week away from exposing the truth behind the biggest secrets of our time. Wednesday, July 19, the Spikes will tell all on Salute to Conspiracy Theories Night at Medlar Field at Lubrano Park.

Inside sources now say that new ground may be broken on Wednesday night in solving one of the most mysterious disappearances ever. Clues as to the whereabouts of aviation pioneer Amelia Earhart, who went missing in flight in 1937, may have surfaced in the Spikes' offices. While TV channels speculate on the mystery, the Spikes will have one of Earhart's relatives on hand Wednesday to actively participate in the search.

Salute to Conspiracy Theories Night will also fall just one day after the 80th anniversary of the U.S. Navy calling off its search for Earhart in the South Pacific, and one day prior to the 48th anniversary of the date that Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin allegedly landed on the moon.

Another breakthrough will take place on Wednesday as infamous skyjacker D.B. Cooper, who went missing in 1971, is now scheduled to deliver the first pitch balls.

The Spikes will also participate in the search for truth on the field by wearing special Conspiracy Theory Themed Jerseys, depicting the so-called "moon landings," flying saucers, and D.B. Cooper's backpack. The jerseys will go up for bids in an auction presented by PSECU to benefit Children's Miracle Network.

Truth-seekers can prepare for Salute to Conspiracy Theories Night as soon as they enter the ballpark by making their own tinfoil hats to guard against mind control.

Plus, Salute to Conspiracy Theories will pack plenty more revealing revelry, including:

- A first pitch from mysterious Mets great Sidd Finch
- Ike the Spike throwing out a first pitch despite his bloody sock
- A tracking chip implanted to track the movements of on-field host Jerry Valeri
- Potential sightings of Bigfoot, Elvis, the Notorious B.I.G and the Loch Ness Monster
- The transformation of Ike's Kids Zone in left field into Area 51 East
- Warning signs posted at all flouridated and non-flouridated water stations
- A special Roswell Saucer Catch Challenge
- The chance for fans to take their own "moon shots" like Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin at the "moon landing" photo station.

The Spikes are scheduled to host a group calling themselves the "Williamsport Crosscutters" at 7:05 p.m. that night. These so-called "Crosscutters" still claim to be affiliated with the Philadelphia Phillies, which may or may not be related to the Philadelphia Experiment.

For those who seek the truth, or just want to have a good time exploring these and more conspiracy theories, tickets for Salute to Conspiracy Theories Night are available by visiting the Medlar Field at Lubrano Park Ticket Office in person, calling (814) 272-1711, or online at StateCollegeSpikes.com.

$1 tickets will also be available to all fans that are able to decipher the 13-character promo code and enter it online. Will anyone be able to crack the code, or will it remain a mystery like the 4th passage of the Kryptos sculpture at CIA Headquarters?
