BLUE ROCKS BREAKDOWN

HOME: 11-10 | AWAY: 11-6 | STREAK: W2 | LAST 5: 3-2 | LAST 10: 6-4

PITCHERS' DUEL: The Wilmington Blue Rocks tossed their second consecutive shutout, taking a 1-0 pitchers' duel from the Frederick Keys on Wednesday afternoon at Frawley Stadium. Daniel Lynch, Collin Snyder and Tad Ratliff combined on the blanking, while Nick Pratto drove in the game's only run in the bottom of the eighth.

ONE-RUN MAGIC: The Blue Crew have excelled in close games this season. Wilmington leads the Carolina League with 17 contests decided by a single score in 2019. The Rocks are an impressive 14-3 in those close calls. They are also stellar at holding late leads, going 13-1 when taking an advantage into the eighth inning and 15-0 when leading after eight.

GOOSE EGGS GALORE: The Blue Crew managed their fourth shutout of the year on Wednesday and their third already in the month of May alone. All of the Rocks's blankings in 2019 have come against either Carolina (twice) or Frederick (twice).

HOLDING KEY TO BEATING THE KEYS: Daniel Lynch has owned the Keys this season. The lefty established a new career-high by tossing seven frames on May 2 at Frederick, allowing just two runs (one earned) in a victory. He went seven again on Tuesday against the Keys and this time did not surrender a single score. In 14 total frames Lynch has 14 strikeouts and no walks. His ERA versus Frederick is 0.64 as opposed to 4.50 against the rest of the Carolina League.

FUN UNDER THE SUN: The Blue Rocks have had a great deal of success this season under the sun. Wilmington has played seven day games in 2019 and have a 6-1 record in those contests, including two one-run wins over Frederick.

TOP OF THE STANDINGS TO YOU: Wilmington has been in first place for exactly three-quarters of the 2019 season—30 of the campaign's first 40 days.

OFFENSE LOOKING TO SPARK: Despite spending three-fourths of the season atop the Carolina League North standings, the Wilmington offense continues to be a work in progress this season. The Rocks eclipsed the five-hit mark for the first time in over a week in Wednesday's win. Wilmington has managed five knocks or fewer in a contest 18 times in 2019. The Rocks also also got two hits with runners in scoring position on Wednesday, marking only the second time they have done that in the month of May. Wilmington has just 13 total knocks with men at second and/or third base in their last 15 games. Overall the Blue Crew attack is last in the Carolina League with a collective .195 batting average. Wilmington is also last in the loop in on-base percentage, runs, hits and extra-base knocks.

NO MOTHERLY LOVE: The Rocks have had to deal with Mother Nature quite a bit over the first six weeks of the 2019 campaign. Wilmington has had six games rained out this year. Tuesday marked the Blue Crew's fourth doubleheader of the season, with another coming on Saturday at Potomac. The Rocks are 4-4 in twin bill games on the season. Wilmington also had a game against the Mudcats canceled due to wet weather last week and consequently will play only 139 total games and 69 first-half contests in 2019.

Jackson Kowar will make his eighth start as a Blue Rock. The 33rd overall pick in the 2018 Draft out of the University of Florida signed with the Royals for $2.14 million last summer. The righty entered 2019 as the seventh-ranked prospect in the Royals system. He spent his first professional season at Low-A Lexington where he helped the Legends win a South Atlantic League Championship. Kowar went 0-1 with a 3.42 ERA in nine total regular season starts, but posted a 1.06 ERA and a scant .125 batting average against over his final five outings, and then earned victories in both of his playoff starts.

TODAY'S BLUE ROCKS STARTING PITCHER

#26 RHP Brady Singer

Acquired: First-Round Pick (18th overall) in 2018 Draft

Born: Eustis, FL

Age: 22 (August 4, 1996)

Resides: Leesburg, FL

Ht: 6'5 Wt: 195

College: Florida

Bats/Throws: R/R

Pitch Repertoire: 4FB, 2FB, SL, CH

THE BOOK ON BRADY SINGER: Brady Singer will make his eighth start of the season for the Blue Rocks and the eighth of his professional career. Singer was the Royals' first of three first-round picks (No. 18 overall) in last June's draft. The University of Florida product chose the college route over signing with the Toronto Blue Jays, who originally drafted him in the second round out of high school in 2015. The patience paid off when Singer signed for $4.25 million with the Royals last summer. Singer won a national championship with the Gators in 2017 and then earned the Dick Howser Award last year despite pitching through a nagging hamstring injury.

LAST TIME OUT: Singer yielded three runs (but only one earned) on seven hits in a no-decision at Salem. The right-hander had only two strikeouts, which was the lowest total of his pro career. He walked one and hit two Red Sox batters with pitches. He threw 50 of his 82 pitches for strikes.

VERSUS OPPONENT: This is Singer's first appearance of the season against the Keys.

QUITE THE COLLEGE CAREER: Singer accomplished about everything a college pitcher possibly could during his junior season at Florida. He was named SEC Pitcher of the Year after leading the conference in wins and ERA. He won the Dick Howser Trophy--an award given annually to the nation's top college baseball player. He was also one of four finalists for the Golden Spikes Award, joining: Casey Mize (first overall pick), Kody Clemens (79th) and Andrew Vaughn and was named Baseball America College Baseball Player of the Year-- becoming the fourth player drafted by the Royals to earn the honor (Wil Myers--2012, Alex Gordon--2006 and Tom Gordon--1988).

FIRST-ROUND TRIO BUILDING A BOND: Last June, the Kansas City front office spent more than $8 million on three college pitchers among the first 34 picks of the draft, selecting Singer 18th, Jackson Kowar 33rd and Daniel Lynch at No. 34. Fortunately for the Royals, the trio gets along great. Singer and Kowar lived together for three years at the University of Florida. Lynch and Kowar roomed together last season in Lexington, and all three got an apartment together this season in Wilmington. "We understand that we're all in this thing kind of together," Lynch says. "The Royals have done a great job of expressing that to us. It's not about who's going to be the ace, it's about being teammates, having success as a team and about us moving up together."

HYPER-COMPETITIVE: Singer is a bulldog of a competitor. He lives for it. In fact, teammate Jackson Kowar calls him the most competitive person he's ever met. The best example came on national television last season. Singer was on the mound for the Gators in Game Three of the NCAA Super Regionals against Wake Forest when it started to rain. Singer stared up at the sky and unleashed a torrent of raw emotion directed at Mother Nature for interrupting such a critical moment. A teammate had to come and walk him from the mound back to the dugout. This spring Royals assistant general manager J.J. Picollo told The Athletic how much he and the Royals loved to see that side of Singer on such a big stage. "It's why he had the success he had and why he stood out so much," Picollo said. "It's an intensity that he has under control, too." Picollo also told The Athletic it wasn't just the national stage that Singer wants to take. The Royals removed him from an intrasquad game this spring after he took a comebacker off the leg. It was out of an abundance of caution, but as Picollo put it, he was none too pleased about not being able to finish the inning.

WHAT A CHRISTMAS GIFT: Most everyone loves their parents, but few have put a value on how much their Mom and Dad's love meant better than Singer. This past Christmas Singer posted an emotional video on his twitter account where he provided his parents with an incredibly generous gift. In a letter which his mom read out loud, Singer wrote: "Thank you for everything you've done to help me reach my dreams. There's absolutely no way I could have done all this by myself. Both of you constantly took off of work and spent every dime you made just to put a smile on my face. My smile and appreciation for both of you has never stopped and it never will." After reading how he could never repay them, Singer's mother went into stunned silence as she read the line that was Singer's gift to them: paying off a loan from the bank and their debt. The letter wrapped up with this line from Singer: "Your giving hearts helped to shape my tiny dream into a reality," Singer wrote in the letter's conclusion." Singer said he didn't expect the gesture it did, but he made the gift public because: "I wanted kids to see you should help the people that got you here. I didn't get here by myself. My parents did so much for me. I want to do anything I can to help them."

They said it: On when he became a switch hitter: "It was a year before I signed with the Royals. I actually learned really quickly. I started thinking about it when I was 13 years old. Then I did it during my tryouts when I was 14 and 15 years old before the Royals signed me at 16. I'm originally a right-hander. It's not easy though. You want to be good on both sides of the plate, but some games you are going to feel better as a right-hander than left-hander and then it switches. So when I'm in the cages, I have to split my batting practice rounds to make sure I stay balanced working on each side." On outgoing personality: "That's helped me a lot with my game. Trying to stay relaxed, smiling and enjoying the game. Everyone can see that on and off the field. I always like to talk in the dugout, joke with my teammates. If you take the game too seriously, it becomes no fun anymore." On signing with the Royals: "When I signed, in my mind, I knew I was young, but to sign for that money, it just made me so happy. I knew I could help my family and I worked very hard to make it and just very proud of that moment and happy I can support my family."

I think it's going be good for me to have some fresh faces and some new environments to challenge myself in." (On dealing with injuries and finally staying healthy last year)..."Especially at the beginning of my career, I had some injuries to both hamstrings and my groin. But what you learn from those injuries and those events is how to take care of your body better and I could say that's something that I'm really proud of. The way I was able to be on the field consistently last year."...(On defensive change)... It's been very easy to move from the infield to the outfield. I was a little nervous moving back to the infield, but it turned out that it was just fine. You don't really forget how to do things now. Now I can just move around and help the team wherever it takes. It helps keep the game more fun and not as monotonous, so it definitely helps me out.

Hicklen said it: (On bouncing all over the place last season)..."Last year was an extended roller coaster for sure, starting off in extended spring training basically being really disappointed with that. Then I went to Lexington starting off really slow there and then kind of catching fire there for a couple months, and then having the opportunity to move up to Wilmington was really really special. Got up here, really had a good time, started playing well with the guys and then I got called into the office unexpectedly and was told that Seuly (Matias) got hurt in Lexington and that I was going to have to go back for the playoffs. Originally I was pretty upset, but I had to look through it with a different lens and just try to change my perspective. That's one of the biggest lessons I learned last year and in life was that it's all about what lens you look through. So I took that approach and made the most of my opportunity in Lexington. I went down there and felt like I contributed a lot to the team. I felt like I was a leader on the team, and at the end of the day we were able win a championship, which is what you set out to do at the beginning of every year you play this game."

Martin said it: (On his goals at the plate)...“I really just want to get on base and keep my on-base percentage high. I know my teammates will do their job and drive me in. As long as I get on, I can do my job steal second or third, or even if I don't steal a base, I can get in the pitcher's head and get him to maybe make a mistake. I know these guys can drive me in from first base...(On his great success at stealing bases)..."We really worked on it at Spring Training. We harp on keying on what certain pitchers do, studying them and the game so it should help me during the season. It was a process that we really embraced last year. The prep means I might notice that a pitcher has a quick pickoff move, but he's slow to home. So things like that help me. Stealing bases is what I have to do.” (On player he tries to emulate)...“A guy I look at now is Mookie Betts. He doesn't strikeout a lot, he can steal bases, he's not the biggest guy and he plays hard every day.” (On dealing with injuries the past several seasons)...“Three years ago I broke my hamate bone and that was in Spring Training. That was pretty frustrating because I couldn't get a chance to go to a full-season club and show what I could do. I overcame that and then (in 2017), I suffered the face injury when I ran into Gabriel Cancel, our second baseman--which cost me a huge chunk. Then last year it was just nagging stuff that started early and just lingered. I was having decent years, but there's nothing you can do about it but continue to work hard and put yourself in position to take advantage of opportunities.”

That is how I try to play the game”....(On difficulties of being injured an unable to play) It was difficult for me because I love this game. I need to hit homers. - Reached base safely in 41 of his 47G

Melendez said it: (On being a catcher)...I definitely take a lot of pride in catching just because I'm not only catching for myself but also for the pitchers. I have to be able to call a good game, be able to frame pitches that are borderline, be able to block balls. I want my pitchers to have confidence in me and trust in me to be able to throw breaking ball with two strikes and know that I'm going to be able to block it. I do think that defense comes first but it's a balance. I don't think hitting should be very far behind." (On his relationship with fellow catching prospect Silberto Rivero)...It's been amazing working together, we have a great relationship. On and off the field. I think on the field when one of us are struggling a little bit whether it's with the bat, were able to help each other out, give each other advice. If one of us is doing good in that category, be able to like pick each other back up, and just give each other advice and kind of boost each other's confidence when we may not have it. And then when we're both doing well, just trying to piggyback on that and make sure that we can keep that flowing for as long as possible." (On passing up the chance to play for his Dad at FIU)... "It was definitely a tough decision. I grew up watching my dad's teams play all my life and have never been to the College World Series Super Regional. So that's something that I wanted to do. I wanted to go play for him, not only for myself, but also for him. I wanted to bring that bring back the College World Series title to wherever he's coaching if I knew at that at that particular moment, and so it was definitely a tough decision. But my dad and my family supported me."

First time he wore a Royals uniform was in Little League, and it just happened to be the year he hit the first home run of his life on a pitch he said came in above his eyes... Had a walk-off single with the bases loaded as a 12 year old to defeat Japan 2-1 in the Little League World Series

2019 Notes:

- Batted .247 w/4HR 22XBH 34RBI 24BB in 52G
- Was named the Surprise Player of the Year
- Led the team in homers and RBI and was 2nd in hits

They said it: (On his first year of full-season ball)...I think overall it was a good year offensively. There were some areas I can work on like consistency and cutting down on the strikeouts, but I made progress. The biggest thing was getting used to full-season ball, all the ups and downs you go through. You have to ride the wave. It was a long year, but having guys like MJ [Melendez] and Seuly [Matias]...we all just built off each other. It was a fantastic team." (On Making a Playoff Run last year in Lexington)... That was my first taste of the playoffs. Obviously, you put expectations in your head, but it lived up to it and was a lot of fun." (On his defense)...I had to work on my throwing a little bit, on throws to second and to first. I changed my arm slot mid-year, and it really didn't help me out. So we went back to how I normally do it. Naturally, I'm in a lower slot, a little more sidearm. I've always been fine in terms of accuracy, but the infielders were complaining that my throws moved too much [like a two-seam fastball]. But I went back to my normal slot and everything is fine. I think what I'm best at is picking balls in the dirt, and my agility around the bag. Picking balls and saving bad throws is huge." (On Who He Admires in Game) I really like Joey Votto's offensive approach at the plate. It's just solid. He gets the walks. He has the average, the on-base percentage, the slugging percentage. He doesn't strike out too much. That's what I'd like to be offensively.

They said it: (On his relationship with former Blue Rock and current Royal Salvador Perez)... "My favorite player is Salvador Perez. He's exactly (what a catcher should be). He is injured this year, but I had the pleasure to play with him last spring training in the Big League camp. He told me a lot of tips and was so (generous) with his time. It was really an amazing experience. I had a bunch of fun. He's a funny guy. I laughed a lot with him and I tried to ask a lot of questions to him, and that helped me. I appreciate him as a person and as a catcher." (On his relationship with fellow catcher MJ Melendez)..."We have a pretty good communication with each other and we push each other. If he went bad one day I'll step up for him and he does the same for me, so we just really help each other" (On working with a pitching staff full of prospects)...It's pretty fun working (with these prospect pitchers) because these guys know what they're doing and what they want to throw and why." (On how he can become a better hitter)...My (biggest thing) is to be ahead in the count. That is my focus. When I'm ahead I get better pitches, make better swings make more doubles, make more RBI, Make more of everything (but) strikeouts." (On being from Venezuela)...My family is still all back home and they watch and listen to everything on the internet. They follow so close for being so far. I got to go home and spend some time with them this offseason. That was great because I don't know if I will get back there next winter. They said it: On working with Melendez and Rivero "Yes, the three of us are definitely together the most. Want to pick their brain because they have been in pro ball obviously longer than me, so always trying to learn and get their advice is something I want to make sure I continue to do to become a better catcher." On making jump from college to professional baseball last season: "It's the same ball game as college pretty much. The game is a little faster, the pitchers throw harder and you definitely have to adjust to it but it felt pretty easy to me." On type of catcher he is: "I would say I am more of a defensive minded catcher, but my offense has improved over the last year I'd say. I've been working on my weaknesses offensively, staying through the ball more, using the opposite field more and that's helped me a lot and also get more flexible. I look forward to helping this team in any way I can." On being born in Curacao: "I originally moved to the United States in the fall of 2014 and I went to high school for one year here then went to North Central Missouri College and then transferred to Jackson State University and graduated last year. I earned my bachelor's degree in Business Administration and signed with the Royals not too long after." On life in Curacao: Picture bright, clear water where you can see through. Beautiful beaches, great people, very welcoming, kind and loving. It's a multi-cultural island so there are people from everywhere. Everyone can speak three to four different languages so I would definitely recommend visiting if they are looking for a nice spot." On speaking multiple languages: "I can speak English, Spanish, Dutch and my native language Papiamentu." On how he got involved with baseball: "At first I tried to play soccer, but it was too much running. So I told my mom I didn't want to play anymore. I went to try out for a brand new team and it was club baseball, we don't play college baseball like we do in the states. So the coaches asked who wanted to be a catcher and I raised my hand and that's how it all started." Favorite Player was Andrew Jones: "Growing up, Andrew Jones was the player I looked up to the most. He's a hometown hero and the career he had was really fun to watch. After him, we had a couple of different players, but he is one of the big names for us back home."
