Created in 2009, the Vancouver Canadians Baseball Foundation (VCBF) was designed to help local children discover the game of baseball with the vision of taking away the cost and difficulties that can be associated with playing an organized sport. From the development of a youth baseball league to a scholarship program at the University of British Columbia – our vision was to see a child go from his or her first steps on a baseball field right through to helping them receive a post-secondary education.

We envisioned helping up to 150 children from across the Lower Mainland in our first year yet ended up welcoming more than 300 kids between the ages of 6-13 in our inaugural season simply because the need was so great.

Since our first year, we have gone on to help more than 2,500 local children play organized baseball during the summer out at historic Nat Bailey Stadium and also provided more than 60 deserving student-athletes with the opportunity to continue their education while playing baseball for the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds.

As well, we helped create Western Canada’s first fully accessible baseball field specifically designed for the amazing children who play with Challenger Baseball – a program designed to help children with physical and/or cognitive challenges enjoy the game of baseball.

Did you know that in 2017, Canadians co-owner Jeff Mooney and his wife Suzanne Bolton introduced a Vancouver Canadians scholarship program operated along with The Boys & Girls Clubs of South Coast BC to help children committed to continuing their education? This program has already helped 16 local teenagers alter their path in life by allowing them the opportunity to continue their post-secondary education cost-free!

All of this has happened because of your support and the commitment from within our own community. To learn more or to donate today, please visit www.vancouverfoundation.ca/vancouvercanadians
